

2021-2022 Registration Information

AYM is a cooperative program with parents of home-schooled students to educate students to love the Lord with all their minds through the study of mathematics.

Our goal is to provide support to your home school curriculum. We will provide pacing guides, offer once-a-week instruction (live and recorded), provide homework help via online math lab, assign weekly homework as concept practice, write quizzes and tests, and grade student performance on assessments. As a program designed to support parent-directed home education, parents will be involved in the daily work of the student. Parents will oversee daily completion of student assignments, grade daily assignments, and ensure the student correctly reworks the incorrectly answered problems. AYM teachers will meet with students each week, during which we will review problem areas and give introductions to the upcoming lessons. Students at AYM will faithfully attend class, bring completed assignments, be ready to ask questions on specific weak areas and seek help as needed. We believe that working cooperatively we – teachers, parents, & students - can help students excel academically in the courses AYM offers, as well as discovering the mathematical order to God's creativity in our world.
